As owner and producer of CES, the Consumer Technology Association (CTA)™ works diligently to protect our exhibitors’ commitment and investment in the trade show and the industry by taking a firm stance against unofficial participation classified as “outboarding.”

OUR POLICY:
Outboarding is defined as any non-permanent exhibit, demonstration, event, or branded activation that lasts for more than one day during CES and outside of contracted space with CTA. This includes events at Las Vegas hotel suites, meeting rooms, ballrooms, restaurants, clubs, etc. A company is also considered an outboarder if it has contracted space with CTA but contracts directly with another Las Vegas venue for space (for more than one day) that exceeds the net square footage (NSF) contracted with CTA.

We encourage official exhibitors to host parties and special events to enhance an official presence before and after hours. But, such events should be held to strengthen a company’s CES brand positioning, not held as stand-alone functions that compete against those who are making an additional investment in their participation at CES. We look forward to working with any industry entity to bring its tech innovation experience to life at CES and connect with the global market.

“CES has been the place where we launch everything since I started my company eight years ago. It’s been the best exposure and opportunity for us to really grow the business.”
- Christopher Allen, iDevices
